

- The September 9th 2022 meeting of the GJMTA was miraculously called to order without the luxury of a gavel (not an easy task with this chatty chapter) yet masterfully done by brand new president Hope.
- The meeting place was the home of Marge Zollner, who has so graciously allowed us the use of this space, so filled with history and laced with a sweet feeling of peace and love of music.
- There were 14 in attendance and with great joy and jubilation we announce that four of that number are potential new members.
- There was Aaron Seibert, Jessica Seibert, Grace Asquith, and Marsha Waugh.
- Each of these potential members promise to make an exciting and flavorful addition to our already awesome group.
- The excellent program was first. We were introduced to a handsome new guitarist, Ivin Gygi, who was joined on the piano with our own handsome Max, and together they took us into a wonderland of jazz. Not only were we entertained in a most professional way, but were taught with an instructional hand out about altered dominant chords.

The business meeting followed.

- The minutes were read, mocked, yet approved.
- The treasure reported a balance of $2,324.35.
- Dues must be paid in order to participate in the Ribbon Festival.
- There are several addresses listed for the bank. Discussion followed to address the problem including changing addresses to having just one. (Not sure what was resolved)?
- Ribbon Festival information was reviewed with a reminder to turn in registrations next meeting. Questions were answered.
- A Festival Con Brio and Sonatina competition for 2023 instruction and explanation sheet was distributed. It will be held March 4, 2023.
- A most impressive Sonatina poster created by Sarah was shown and greatly admired.
- Ideas and support for the Adult Gala were shared with Linda, who will discuss her decisions later.
- It was announced there is a new Music store with teaching Studios in town. Sorry, I didn't get details.
- With additional sincere words of gratitude for Marge's hospitality, the meeting was adjourned.

Submitted by secretary Bobbi Hardy
Respectfully or not

